REPUBLICAN ATTACK ON GOLD PROGRAM GAINS IN SENATE

Swerves From Constitutional Questions to Defense of Man on Street

SEEK TO MAKE ISSUE

Republican Leaders Already Condemn the Stabilization Fund

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(INS)—The Republican attack on President Roosevelt's new gold monetary program gained in volume in the Senate today as it swerved from constitutional questions to a defense of the "man in the street" against devaluation of the gold dollar.

The Republicans apparently were seeking to make a campaign issue of the President's request for power to nationalize gold and create a $2,000,000,000 fund for stabilizing international exchange. Republican leaders already have condemned the stabilization fund as a "gambling venture" of staggering proportions, certain to lead to tremendous losses to the government and huge profits for private speculators.

Administration leaders sat silent under most of the attack, relying upon their ability to muster enough votes in the Senate to eliminate all unfavorable amendments and enact the bill as desired by the President. Senator Robinson (D) of Arkansas, majority leader, forced the Senate to meet at 11 a.m. an hour earlier than usual, and announced he would hold a Saturday session unless the bill passed by nightfall.

A major silver war was threatened by a bloc of Western progressives from both parties. Led by Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, and Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, the silverites will propose authorizing the President to purchase 1,000,000,000 ounces of silver and then issue silver certificates (paper money) against the silver bullion. They expect to be defeated, but they intend to wage a lively debate.

The Republican strategy of defending the "man in the street" against the gold devaluation program, drew jibes from the Democrats. The President's spokesmen declared it was the first time conservative Republicans have bothered about the "little fellow."

The Republicans nevertheless predicted dire results on people with fixed incomes. They charged the devaluation program would slash the purchasing power of millions of people without giving material benefit to anybody except the confirmed debtor. They predicted salaried employees and persons living on fixed incomes—as insurance or revenue from small estates—would suffer drastic hardships.

Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, was slated for a speech on how the program would affect the salaried employee. He privately condemned the bill as authorizing governmental speculation and a further reduction of income to the employed classes.

Outlaw and Three of His Escaped Gang Are Jailed

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 26—(INS)—John Dillinger, notorious mid-Western outlaw, and three members of his notorious gang of escaped Indiana convicts, were in jail here today, their cross-country flight halted when they fell into police traps.

In a whirling succession of surprise raids police arrested Charles Makley, 50, "the smooth talker"; "Rub 'Em Out" Russell Clark, 39, and Harry Pierpont, 39, "The Killer." Five hours later Dillinger was trapped.

Three women also were taken into custody. One identified herself as Mary Kinter, Pierpont's wife, the other gave her name as Opal Long, and the woman with Dillinger, said she was Ann Martin. They were believed to be from Chicago.

Police seized more than $35,000, eight machine guns, ten bullet proof vests, twenty revolvers and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

The worst gang of desperadoes ever to terrorize the Middle West had posed as wealthy easterners and had rented three elaborate Tucson residences, each of which had been converted into an arsenal.

Dillinger, bank robber and killer, walked guilelessly into a trap police had set for him five hours after his confederates had been arrested. He and Miss Martin in an expensive automobile drove up for an evening call in front of the residence Clark had rented.

Officers leaped from shrubbery and surrounded them as they walked up the front steps. Expert marksmen were posted nearby.

WHILLDEYS AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. George Whilldey, 501 Pond street, and Mr. and Mrs. Alford Guy and son, Philadelphia, motored to Trenton, N. J., Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin and Mrs. Anna Crannage. On Monday Mrs. Frank Abramham, Philadelphia, spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Whilldey.

Men of St. Thomas Parish Organize A Social Club

CROYDON, Jan. 26—The men of St. Thomas Aquinas Church held a meeting in the school auditorium last night for the purpose of organizing a social club within the parish and to increase activities among the church members.

Officers were elected and the club given the name of St. Thomas Good Will Social. The date selected for the next meeting was Wednesday evening, January 31st, at 7:45, in the auditorium. The entire membership is expected to attend with their wives.

The committee in charge of arrangements urges every prospective member to attend.

YOUTHFUL PICKET FOUND SHOT IN WILKES-BARRE

Steel-Jacketed Bullet From High-Powered Gun Used

PETER DOBRANSKI, 16

WILKES-BARRE, Jan. 26—(INS)—A youthful picket was found wounded yesterday with a steel-jacketed bullet from a high-powered gun early today on the porch of a home near the south Wilkes-Barre mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company which has remained in operation despite the strike called by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania.

The victim was Peter Dobrinski, 16, of Ashley, who police believe was on special picket duty at the south Wilkes-Barre mine. Three pickets of miners and another picket, making early morning rounds in the strike district, round the youth. He was rushed to the Mercy Hospital.

The bullet tore through the right side of the youth's chest. Police here do not use steel-jacketed bullets which inflict more serious wounds than ordinary types of slugs.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Gott, On Motor Trip East, Visit Here

Leaving his home in sunny Southern California four weeks ago, Edgar N. Gott, former president of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation which for several years was located here, arrived in Bristol this week, and with Mrs. Gott is enjoying a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parke M. Wetherill, and renewing friendships in this locality.

The Gotts are participating in a several weeks' motor jaunt, and came East via the Southern route, visiting friends enroute.

At present Mr. and Mrs. Gott are residing on their 100-acre farm in Palmdale, California, which they are cultivating, their main crops being alfalfa and fruit. Mr. Gott is at present director of the Pacific Airmotive Corporation, of Los Angeles, an aircraft servicing organization.

The Gott farm in Palmdale is 75 miles from Los Angeles, and through the farm which is located outside of the town of Palmdale, there runs a paved highway.

"We are enjoying our life in California to the full," said Mr. Gott today, "but it certainly is a pleasure to return to Bristol and visit our old friends."

Mr. Gott, whose appearance speaks well for his life in the sunny state, says that the family is enjoying to the full their farm-life. On the small ranch there is located a bathing pool, and riding horses are in readiness for a canter at any time.

Enroute East Mr. and Mrs. Gott visited friends in Shreveport, La., and at Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., they were entertained by Lt. and Mrs. Edwin R. McReynolds, the latter being the former Miss Katherine Gaffney, of Bristol. "The McReynolds have a lovely home at Maxwell Field, and our visit was most pleasant," said Mr. Gott. Miami, Florida, was visited by the former Bristol couple, and then turning northward, they stopped at Washington, and then looked forward to visits to Mrs. C. Talbot Porter, Torrington, wife of a late official of the Keystone Corporation; and to other friends in this section.

The couple plan to visit in New York, and then return West via St. Louis and Detroit, then motor on to Ft. Leavenworth to see Captain and Mrs. Lowell Smith, formerly of this porough.

Demonstration In First Aid Is Given By Rescue Squad

CROYDON, Jan. 26—Before a large and appreciative audience at the fire station, Tuesday evening, Bucks County Rescue Squad gave a demonstration in first aid.

Mr. Laus, of the American Red Cross, awarded certificates of proficiency to the following members of the squad: J. Patterson, R. Porter, W. Harris, E. Harris, D. Phillips, H. Robinson, J. Reiss, H. Phillips, C. Smith, auxiliary, N. Harris, R. Schmunk, M. Porter, E. Ervin, A. Gleason, M. Phillips. These certificates represent a study course of 32 hours on first aid.

Mr. Gaskill, of the Mine Safety Appliance Corporation, gave an interesting talk on the use of the inhalator.

HERE AND THERE THRUOUT BUCKS COUNTY

Newtown Poultry Farmer Awarded Prizes in Trenton At Show

ARREST IN AUTO THEFT

Historical Society Purchases Pneumatic Canal Boat Whistle for Museum

Walter B. Sanders, manager of the Brookside Poultry Farm, near Newtown, captured two first prizes in the New Jersey State Farm Products Show now being held in Trenton, N. J. The Bucks county poultryman, who is a member of the Bucks County Producers' Co-operative Association, placed first in the three dozen brown egg commercial display, and in the carton display for brown eggs.

Charged with stealing an automobile belonging to Frank M. Swope, of Upper Black Eddy, John Cegielski, 25, of Durham township, was arrested Wednesday by Constable A. R. Atkinson, of Doylestown, and Trooper Elmer Lincoln, of the State Police.

The information was sworn out by Swope and Cegielski was lodged in the Bucks County Prison in default of bail for hearing to be held Monday afternoon, Jan. 29, at 4 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Irvin M. James.

Horace M. Mann, curator of the Bucks County Historical Society, has added another bit of Americana to the collection now on display in the museum, here, by purchasing a pneumatic canal boat whistle.

The whistle, which is made of metal and resembles a bicycle pump in appearance, is about twelve inches high and four inches in diameter, and is cylindrical in shape.

Curator Mann explained that the whistle was fastened on the deck of the canal boats, near the rudder, and within reach of the captain.

As the boat neared a lock, the whistle, giving forth dull notes similar to those of a fog horn on a ferry boat, warned the lock tender that a boat was at hand. Thus no time was lost in going through the locks.

The whistle was unearthed at Roelets, below Morrisville, and is the first one to be added to the collection.

The Langhorne Junior Sorosis will sponsor a story hour for children from the ages of four to eight inclusive. The classes will be held at the library on Monday afternoons at 3:15 o'clock for children of school age, and on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the younger children. These classes are free and are open to all who are interested.

On Saturday afternoon, February 10, the Junior Sorosis will give a card party and tea at the home of Mrs. J. Nelson Allison at 2 o'clock. The benefit is to send delegates from the club into the Southeastern District rallies which occur every other month. The card party is sponsored by the Publicity Committee.

New members of the Junior Sorosis for this year are as follows: Miss Eleanor Lee, of Newtown; Mrs. Lamont Brick, Mrs. Herbert Varian, Mrs. Edward Pierson, of Parkland, and Mrs. Robert Duemler, of Hill and Maple avenues.

MIDDLETOWN GRANGE OUTLINES PROGRAM

Lecturer, Master Told What They Have Hopes of Accomplishing

COMMITTEES NAMED

LANGHORNE, Jan. 26—With a fair representation of members in attendance, plans were made at the meeting of Middletown Grange in the Friends school house, here, for the year's activities.

The lecturer, Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, and the master, Howard B. Austin, explained to the members what they hope to accomplish in the Grange during the coming year and following these remarks the members took part in a number of the discussions pertaining to Grange work. They also gave a number of suggestions which may be carried out during the year.

Chief among the business transactions at the meeting last evening was the appointment of the standing committees by the master, Howard B. Austin.

The following committees were named: Home economics, Mrs. William P. Newbold, Hannah G. C. Pickering and Mrs. Aaron Tomlinson; women's work, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Emma Billiger, Mrs. John Trussell, Hannah Hibbs and Georgianna Thompson; music, Mrs. Henry C. Pickering, Mrs. R. Walker Jackson, Mrs. Russell Newbold, Mrs. Harry Ridge, Mrs. Frank Thompson and Mrs. George Yerkes.

It was decided at the meeting this week not to hold the next meeting on Wednesday evening, February 7, at the usual place, but at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Newbold in this borough. The program for that meeting has not as yet been announced.

LASPARELLA UNDER BAIL IN AUTO ROBBERY CASE

Bristol Man Changes His Mind and Waives Extradition

HELD UNDER $1,000 BAIL

Fred Lasparella, arrested in New York on Wednesday in connection with breaking into and robbing of an automobile here in 1932, was brought to Bristol yesterday afternoon. Lasparella changed his mind about demanding extradition and came voluntarily with Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo.

The Bristol man and Detective Russo arrived here at about three o'clock and Lasparella was locked up. Last night he was given a hearing before Justice of Peace, James Guy.

The only evidence presented at the hearing was the facts of Lasparella's previous arrest along with four others for robbing the automobile of Louis A. Newman, Trenton, N. J. Jewelry and clothing to the value of $1,000 was stolen.

Lasparella was held in $1,000 bail for court.

At the hearing last night Chief of Police Jones and Detective Russo were the only witnesses.

BUILD FOR THE FUTURE

The question of Russian trade, which was counted on previous to recognition of the Soviet to play an important part in stimulating business recovery here, continues to occupy an uncertain future status.

American business men naturally were hopeful that Russian buying on a large scale would begin soon following recognition. This was their attitude in spite of the fact that it was known that Russia would have to have adequate credit here to finance its purchases.

No material change has taken place in this situation, but this does not mean the Soviet will not become a large consumer of American products. According to Ambassador Troyanovsky in Washington, Russia is in need of $1,000,000,000 worth of goods, the greater part of the orders for which "could go to the United States, but the question will be decided by our ability to pay."

"As regards paying for our purchases in this country," he continued, "we produce some gold and we also export furs. What we take from you, whether it is producers' goods for consumers' goods, depends mainly on the progress of the five-year plan. We are developing so rapidly that our own needs are enormous, which also limits our ability to export."

Rather than become impatient with the slowness of Russian orders, American business men might serve their own interests better by looking more to the future than to the present for realizing their hopes with respect to Russian trade.

WORK FOR BEGGARS

There are beggars and beggars. Some are deserving of help. Others are imposters—men or women who prefer panhandling to any form of legitimate occupation.

The authorities of most cities during the depression looked with leniency on street begging. They have refrained from being extremely vigilant or severe in the enforcement of laws against begging.

But the time has come for a change in this attitude. New York at least thinks so, and other cities might do well to take a similar stand. Industrial conditions generally are improving. Work—federal relief or private—is becoming available to increasing numbers of persons. This would serve to reduce begging.

In New York the other day, 63 street beggars were arrested in an effort to learn the proportion of deserving cases among them. Civil relief works jobs were offered the 63. Seven immediately and with eagerness accepted them. The others rejected the work, obviously because they preferred begging and regarded the latter as being more profitable. They were promptly sent to jail.

The experiment is one that almost any city now may try. If adopted generally, it should serve to reduce panhandling greatly and rid city streets of numerous persons who have no just claims upon the public for charity.

An optimist is a person who never expects to read another definition of an optimist.

The cost of a rocket trip to the moon, a scientist estimates, would be about $100,000,000, which means that the moon is not destined soon to become a popular playground for Americans.

SYNOPSIS

After three years in Europe, lovely Stanley Paige, young society girl, returns to New York. She phones Perry Deverest, who had been madly in love with her before she was rushed abroad following her father's death. Stanley, however, was not so sure of her heart at the time. Perry realizes, after seeing Stanley again, that he is still in love with her but steels himself against committing himself until his love is reciprocated. Stanley, on her own as long as she could remember, was never sure of what she wanted in life. Perry takes her to Nigel Stern's studio party.

CHAPTER THREE

"Go down Fifth," Stanley told him, once they were in his car, "and drive slower than slow. I want to feel it—you know, sort of breathe in it. I love it at night like this—all deserted and quiet and sort of waiting." She laughed huskily. "Heavens, Perry, I'm going emotional on you!"

"I'd much prefer your going emotional about me. Any chance of that, Stan?"

She squeezed his arm with a friendly little gesture. "I like you a lot, Perry—"

"You mean I'm nice to have around but not exactly vital to your happiness?"

"Not exactly."

They both laughed. Stanley, because she was amused, and Perry because she expected him to be.

He reminded himself again as he slowed for a red light that he would wade into any affair with Stanley—not dive from any emotional springboard. Comfortably untroubled about most things, Perry realized in some dim way that Stanley had never been touched by passion. That neither he nor anyone else had any adequate idea of her emotional potentialities. He rather imagined that they might be rather tremendous once awakened. He had failed to awaken them once. He had no good reason for believing he would succeed now. Therefore, he intended to be not too badly hurt if he failed. He felt that in any love-affair he might have with Stanley discretion was obviously the better part of enthusiasm.

As they rode slowly downtown through a muggy caressing spring night Stanley was not thinking at all. She was feeling. She was feeling very young and a little excited and delightfully contented. She was glad she was riding down Fifth Avenue with Perry at midnight. She was utterly relaxed and yet pleasantly exhilarated. She wondered vaguely if she had had too much champagne and decided she wouldn't drink any more that night. She thought girls who drank too much were stupid. Too much liquor took the edge off things. A little was all right. But as far as she was concerned she didn't need any. She had only drunk tonight to be friendly and to sort of celebrate. She'd probably have a head in the morning. If she did, she'd swear off. She hated the thought of an early morning hangover—was quite sure nothing was worth it.

By the time they had reached Stern's apartment house, she had decided quite definitely not to drink any more until she was thirty. By that time probably everything that was going to happen to her would have happened. There was something a little frightening in this thought. For a second she wondered rather wildly which was worse—never to have had anything happen to you or to have had everything? Before she could decide Perry had parked the car and was waiting for her to get out.

Nigel Stern's studio-apartment was on the top floor of a house on West Twelfth Street. Practically the entire floor had been thrown into one enormous room and to-tite; it was as if they said to her night it was filled with the pungent smell of a wood fire, much cigarette smoke and far too many people; they stood about in groups and sprawled on low divans and cluttered up the place with their laughter and their noise and their various accents and perfumes.

She looked at him with startled eyes. "To the roof, lady, to the roof!" said Drew.

"Heavens, Perry—what a lot of people!" Stanley paused just inside the door. She didn't like crowds. She liked to take her people one by one, not all jumbled together like so many goldfish in a bowl.

"Don't let that trouble you—you'll never see half of them again. There are a few here I want you to know. You'll like Nigel—he's probably in the pantry shaking up more drinks. That's Dennis St. John over there by the piano. She's clever. Makes swell living magazine covers. The girl in green—see her?" Perry indicated a tall, absurdly thin girl with magnificent red hair and curiously shaped eyes.

"Lovey, isn't she?" Stanley spoke nervously, perfumery. For some reason entirely unassociated with the girl in green she felt suddenly disturbed. Some sort of a dull undercurrent of desire seemed to be reaching out, pulling at her. She lifted her chin a trifle defensively, her eyes searching the room apprehensively. She knew in some inexplicable way that she was being stared at—not casually or even curiously—but intently and brazenly, with a sort of audacious insolence. Her eyes moved restlessly, halted abruptly, widened slowly, almost painfully. Tall, he was, this dark young man who was staring at her from across that crowded room, and erect of shoulder and ridiculously slim waisted. An arrogant young man, with a defiant, jutting chin and a crest of hair as black and shining as a crow's wing.

Fearfully demanding and snatching his eyes were—and there was a bright stain of color beneath the dark planes of his cheeks. His mouth was red too, and looked as if it had kissed many women and found the experience entirely to its liking.

She stood quite still and returned his stare, aware that there was laughter in his eyes and ruthlessness and a certain pleased astonishment; aware that somehow they contrived to be at once coolly possessive and rather tenderly continuous.

"To the roof, lady, to the roof!"

He indicated a flight of dusty iron stairs that led upward to a hatches. "Will you walk or shall I carry you?"

"I'll walk," she told him, piqued by the amusement in his voice.

YOUNG WOMEN GIVE ENTERTAINMENT FOR IVORY-PORT CHARITIES

By Nadia De Beaud
(I. N. S. Fashion Editor)

PARIS — (INS) — Instead of calling on the already kind hearted and over exploited artists to provide free programs for charity, the ladies who recently gave a gala dinner at the Ritz for the Charities of Ivory-Port, called on their daughters to entertain them. Everybody agrees that the result was both enchanting and original. The four girls wore gowns made by Ardanse in faces of different color.

Mlle. Simone Gouin, cousin by marriage of the Count Guy de Gabriac, whose mother is an American, wore a gold, lace gown; Mlle. de Caraman-Chimay was in silver lace; Mlle. Verde de l'Isle in black lace and Mlle. Marlene Laure Gouin, still another cousin of the American Count, in red lace. The gowns were absolutely simple in line and the waltz dance by the four girls had the success that their youth and beauty deserved.

PATERSON PAPER FIVE SMOOTHERS HIBERNIANS

HAWKS WALLOP ST. ANN'S AND JUMBLE UP THE RACE

(By T. M. Juno)

Returning to the form they possessed in the first half, the Paterson Parchment Paper Co. five smothered the Hibernians last night in a Bristol Basketball League fray on the Italian Mutual Aid floor. Seven hundred basketball devotees saw the Paper Makers outscore the first half champions, 44-30.

The Paper Millers opened their attack in the first quarter and from the seventh minute on were masters of the game. At this time the score was 6-4 and at half-time the count stood 23-11, the Paterson boys' long shots being very effective.

While they were opening with their offensive attack, the Paterson team was also on the alert to prevent a Hibernian spurt and during this time, the Hibs being scoreless from the field. From the time "Eddie" Roe scored his field goal with three minutes played in the first period until Joe Roe sank in a double-decker late in the second quarter the first half champions did not score a point.

BRISTOL HIGH TEAM TO PLAY BURLINGTON

(By Jack Orr)

Tonight on the local high school court the Bristol High basketball team will clash with the strong Burlington five at 7:30 p. m. Coach Dougherty's protégés are out for their fourth consecutive win, but will have a hard time getting it from the boys across the river.

The Burlington quintet has been champions of the Burlington County League for the last five years and is well on its way to win the crown again. They are led by Captain "Tom" Daddin, and they will be hard club to stop.

Another star on the Jersey five is "Reds" Ayre, who also played for the visitors last year. The Red and Gray will also have to hold down Ayre to win the fray.

The Bristol second team will clash with the Burlington Reserves in the opening game of the evening. Tap-off, 7:30.

First team line-up:

Burlington	position	Bristol
Daddin (c.)	forward	Gallagher
Baratta	forward	Spencer
Jamulis	center	Gibson
Ayre	guard	Rue
Borath	guard	Fry

Substitutes: Bristol, Huffnall, Fagan, Orazi; Burlington, James, Wright, Brendesman.

Referee: Miller.

NAME OMITTED

(By Thomas Juno)

In the list of out-of-town players of the Bristol Basketball League listed in last night's paper, the name of Leo Hibbs, of Emilie, was omitted. Hibbs, with Riemer, constitute the two out-of-town players for the Odd Fellows.
